

Research meeting
August 1, 2013

Application process for potential top charities (Tim)

We are working to formalize our process for charity evaluations for a GiveWell top charity recommendation. There are two main stages in this process: application and evaluation. In the application stage, a charity needs to demonstrate that it is carrying out an intervention that we consider promising and is serious about participating in our process (as demonstrated by sharing the information we ask for on our apply for consideration page: <http://www.givewell.org/apply-for-consideration>). In the evaluation stage, we attempt to answer all of the questions that would affect whether we can confidently recommend the charity.

All research meeting notes available at <http://www.givewell.org/research-meetings>